

Are you interested in reducing children’s challenging behaviors in your early childhood program?

Nebraska Children & Families Foundation has coordinated locally with Public Health Solutions to support early childhood providers as they learn and use the Pyramid Model in their programs. The Pyramid Model is an evidence-based framework for improving children’s social-emotional development and reducing challenging behavior.

Fifteen early childhood providers (home & center-based) in Jefferson, Gage, and/or Saline counties will have the opportunity to participate. As a participant you will receive professional development in the form of training and coaching, as well as financial support through training and coaching stipends and grants.

Please join local trainers and former participants for dinner and a short informational meeting to learn more:
